[He was a Catholic] and abjured the errors of Popery. The Catholic writers assure us that he died a Papist. On this point the Protestants need not dispute : *Bern. The famous Sedan edition, printed in very small type known as sédanoise or parisienne, was till the appearance of Pickering's the smallest edition in the world. The letterpress, within the margin, is slightly broader than Pickering's, but full lines contain a few types less, while 20 lines of Pickering's ed. go into the space occupied by 17 lines of the Sedan ed. It has the advantage in point of rarity, and copies have sold from 34 frs. to 59 frs., and one uncut for 64 frs. The top margin is in some places rather narrow, and there is a small hole in back of binding, but affecting only the leather; otherwise this is a good copy.

598 HORATIUS. Pickering's second edition, crimson morocco extra, gilt top, uncut edges, 16s 1824
The second—executed in a new and even preferable type—(but of the same diminutive size) challenges the attention of the curious and tasteful.—Dibdin.

I entertained no doubt of it myself, and taking it for granted that your Lordship had the work of Zwicker, or had access to it (and it being a book that I had never seen, and could not by any means peruse), I desired a common friend to apply to you for it. Your answers, which were different at different times, convinced him that you had never seen the book at all. It has since been sent to me by a learned foreign correspondent, and I find Zwicker's views of the state of opinions in early times to be so different from mine that I am confident if you had ever seen his work you had never read it, &c."—See Priestley's Tracts, 1815, p. 416.

BITS OF OLD EDINBURGH

DRAWN & ETCHED

BY

FRANK W. SIMON.

EDINBURGH:
GEORGE P. JOHNSTON, 33 GEORGE STREET.
MDCCCLXXXV.

A SERIES of Ten Etchings, comprising—John Knox's House; Old Houses, Canongate; Smollett's House; Bakehouse Close; The Grassmarket; The Lawnmarket; Whitehorse Close; Chessel's Court; Ramsay's Yard, and Plainstone Close, with brief descriptions of each on a separate sheet.

"All these places have had, and are likely to have as long as they continue to be as they are, a great charm for artists who can enter into the spirit of them. They present very much that is picturesque. They are so full of effects of light and shade; they have in many cases so much beauty of form, though their surroundings be squalid, that he who has the eye of an artist cannot fail to rejoice in them. Mr SIMON seems to us to have realised in the best way the best features of the "bits" that he has undertaken to illustrate, and it is no exaggeration to say that this portfolio of etchings will afford genuine pleasure to all lovers of art."—Scotsman.

The Issue is strictly limited to 225 Copies, of which only a few remain; and 25 India proofs on large paper—now all sold.

In handsome portfolio (15¼ × 11 inches), price 21s.

Dediée à la posterité.—"Cet ouvrage est écrit avec beaucoup de liberté, et il contient bien des faits curieux dont l'auteur a été témoin. Cependant les préventions de d'Aubigné contre les catholiques, et son penchant bien connu à la satire, ne permettent point d'accorder une grande confiance à ses récits. L'édition que nous citons a été imprimée aux frais de l'auteur; mais à peine était-elle publiée qu' une sentence du lieutenant civil, en date 2 Janvier 1620, condamna l'ouvrage à être brûlé par la main du bourreau, en sorte que les exemplaires en sont devenus rares."—Brunet.

BY

EDINBURGH:
GEORGE P. JOHNSTON, 33 GEORGE STREET.
MDCCCLXXXV.

A SERIES of Ten Etchings, comprising—John Knox's House; Old Houses, Canongate; Smollett's House; Bakehouse Close; The Grassmarket; The Lawnmarket; Whitehorse Close; Chessel's Court; Ramsay's Yard, and Plainstone Close, with brief descriptions of each on a separate sheet.

"All these places have had, and are likely to have as long as they continue to be a they are, a great charm for artists who can enter into the spirit of them. They presen very much that is picturesque. They are so full of effects of light and shade; they have in many cases so much beauty of form, though their surroundings be squalid, that he who has the eye of an artist cannot fail to rejoice in them. Mr SIMON seems to us to have realised in the best way the best features of the "bits" that he has undertaken to illustrate, and it is no exaggeration to say that this portfolio of etchings will affor genuine pleasure to all lovers of art."—Scotsman.

The Issue is strictly limited to 225 Copies, of which only a few remain; and 25 India proofs on large paper—now all sold.

"You have . . . given me a great pleasure in the inspection of their rare beauty."—RT. HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.

"It is our agreeable duty to commend them highly, both for their faithful representation of the architectural features of Old Edinburgh, and also for their technical skill."—The Academy.

"All these places have had, and are likely to have as long as they continue to be as they are, a great charm for artists who can enter into the spirit of them. They present very much that is picturesque. They are so full of effects of light and shade; they have in many cases so much beauty of form, though their surroundings be squalid, that he who has the eye of an artist cannot fail to rejoice in them. Mr SIMON seems to us to have realised in the best way the best features of the "bits" that he has undertaken to illustrate, and it is no exaggeration to say that this portfolio of etchings will afford genuine pleasure to all lovers of art."—Scotsman.

Bits of Old Edinburgh

DRAWN & ETCHED BY FRANK W. SIMON.

EDINBURGH: GEORGE P. JOHNSTON, 33 GEORGE STREET.
MDCCCLXXXV.

AN ARTISTIC SOUVENIR OF OLD EDINBURGH in a Series of Ten Etchings of existing characteristic examples of Old Edinburgh Architecture, with brief descriptions. These comprise—John Knox's House; Old Houses in Canongate; Smollett's House; Bakehouse Close; The Grassmarket; The Lawnmarket; Whitehorse Close; Chessel's Court; Ramsay's Yard, and Plainstanes Close.

"You have . . . given me a great pleasure in the inspection of their rare beauty."—RT. HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.

"It is our agreeable duty to commend them highly, both for their faithful representation of the architectural features of Old Edinburgh, and also for their technical skill."—The Academy.

"All these places have had, and are likely to have as long as they continue to be as they are, a great charm for artists who can enter into the spirit of them. They present very much that is picturesque. They are so full of effects of light and shade; they have in many cases so much beauty of form, though their surroundings be squalid, that he who has the eye of an artist cannot fail to rejoice in them. Mr SIMON seems to us to have realised in the best way the best features of the 'bits' that he has undertaken to illustrate, and it is no exaggeration to say that this portfolio of etchings will afford genuine pleasure to all lovers of art."—Scotsman.

Edw. Blount, 1620

It is presumably from this work that Dr John Brown took the title for his collected writings (see Blackwood's Mag. for Feby. 1883). In the "Epistle to the Reader," signed by Blount, he says, "The author of this Book I know not;" but on the title page of Dr Brown's copy was written in an old hand, "By ye Lord Candish, after Earle of Devonshire" (Wm. Gilbert, eldest son of 1st Earl). Lowndes and Watt (who give date erroneously as 1626 and 1720 respectively) enter it under "Blount." With stamp of Rev. Mark Pattison on title.

Cette édition, que se trouve difficilement, est ornée de très-jolies gravures en Bois.—Brunet. The compilation was originally made by an Egyptian scribe at the beginning of the fifth century, but the translation into Greek, made by Philip somewhat later, is all that has come down to us. The illustrations are not merely the Egyptian hierogyphlics, but are in the manner of the pictorial emblems. This edition has been largely made use of by Mr Cory (see No. 251). Fine tall copy, inscribed on fly-leaf, "ex libris Joannes Gibsone, Glasguæ, 1739."

In one vol. folio, old calf over oak bds. (broken), 15s 1512-30

EDITIO PRINCEPS? Both Brunet and Dibdin give the 1530 as that of the first edition of Polybius, but neither mention one of 1580. The work has every appearance of being of the earlier date (in colophon), and 1580 on title page) certainly seems a misprint. It contains several large ornamental initials. The second work, besides ornamental initials, has on title page an unusually fine impression of the device of Badius.

353 POMPONATII Mantuanii (Petri Tractatus de Immortalitate Animae, 12mo, woodcut title, hf.-cf., 3s 6d No place, 153[illegible]

360 PSALMS. The Psalmes of David, translated [in prose] from the Vulgate, 12mo, hf. bd. morocco ex., dull gold edges, 28s
No name or place [St. Germains?], 1700

This translation, by Mr Carryll, tutor of the Pretender by whom he was created Lord Dartford, was, it is stated n the preface, intended "only for the privat devotions of Lay persons," but by the approbations prefixed it would appear to be intended to supercede the Version in he Douay Bible. A specimen of the translation is given by Cotton, p. 381. The book is so rare that Lewis could not obtain a copy of it. The typography is somewhat curious. The capital K is often used for the small etter k, and J for the personal pronoun I.

361 PSALMS. A Paraphrase upon the Psalms of David [in verse], by SAM. WOODFORD, D.D., second ed., corrected by the author, eng. frontis., 8vo, old calf, 5s 1778

The music is given for the whole of each psalm. Appended is a Liturgy, Catechism, and Confession of Faith.

365 RABANUS. Magnencii Rabani Mauri De Laudibus sancte Crucis opus. erudicione versu prosaque mirificum. Roman letter, 2 fine large woodcuts, folio, hf. bd., 42s
Phorçheim in ædibus Thomæ Anshelmi, 1503

A very rare Edition and remarkably curious specimen of typography in red and black. A number of figures of saints and angels, and the various forms of crosses, &c., are defined by red letter set in the midst of the black. It is cleverly done, and produces a singular effect. The initials are also printed in red, instead of being filled in by hand. The book is also of interest as being an early work of the only printer who ever practised his art in Phorca or Pfortzheim. Only one volume of XVth century printing of that town now remains, viz., Joannis Altenstaig Vocabularius, 1500. Anselmus Badensis continued here till 1511, when he removed to Tubingen, and thenceforward we hear no more of Pfortzheim printing. —See Cotton's Typo. Gazetteer.

366 RABELAIS. Les Ouvres de Mᵉ François Rabelais, docteur en medicine, 8vo, vellum, gilt back, 25s
à Lyon par Jean Martin, 1558

Brunet after having very carefully examined this edition is convinced that the book is of later date than that on title, and presumes that it was printed about the beginning of the 17th Century. It is rare, however, and Coste's copy he quotes at 61 francs.

367 RABELAIS, F. Works, translated by Sir T. Urquhart and Motteux; with explanatory notes, by Duchart, Ozell, and others, 2 portraits, 2 vols. cloth, uncut, as new, 17s 6d Bohn's Extra Vol., 1849

STAVELY of Cussington, Leicestershire, admitted of the Inner Temple, 1647, called to the Bar 1654, died 1683.—Lowndes, p. 2503. Published "when the court espoused the cause of popery, and the presumptive heir to the crown openly professed himself a Catholic."

Two fine engraved portraits of Charles when Prince of Wales inserted before title.

 Lowndes makes no allusion to an impression on large paper, nor can I trace one elsewhere. A copy appeared in the late Mr Pickering's sale, and this has every appearance of being the one there sold, but with the addition of the portraits pasted on the flyleaf.—Cutting from old catalogue on cover, in which it is described as probably unique, and priced £2, 12s. 6d.

Bits of Old Edinburgh

DRAWN & ETCHED BY FRANK W. SIMON.

EDINBURGH: GEORGE P. JOHNSTON, 33 GEORGE STREET.
MDCCCLXXXV.

AN ARTISTIC SOUVENIR OF OLD EDINBURGH in a Series of Ten Etchings of existing characteristic examples of Old Edinburgh Architecture, with brief descriptions. These comprise—John Knox's House; Old Houses in Canongate; Smollett's House; Bakehouse Close; The Grassmarket; The Lawnmarket; Whitehorse Close; Chessel's Court; Ramsay's Yard, and Plainstone Close.

"You have . . . given me a great pleasure in the inspection of their rare beauty."—RT. HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.

"It is our agreeable duty to commend them highly, both for their faithful representation of the architectural features of Old Edinburgh, and also for their technical skill."—The Academy.

"All these places have had, and are likely to have as long as they continue to be as they are, a great charm for artists who can enter into the spirit of them. They present very much that is picturesque. They are so full of effects of light and shade; they have in many cases so much beauty of form, though their surroundings be squalid, that he who has the eye of an artist cannot fail to rejoice in them. Mr SIMON seems to us to have realised in the best way the best features of the 'bits' that he has undertaken to illustrate, and it is no exaggeration to say that this portfolio of etchings will afford genuine pleasure to all lovers of art."—Scotsman.

Contents: Explanation of the mundane horoscope; Of the division of the 12 signs into the 4 trigons, &c.; Origin of religious rites and the divisions of nations into 12 tribes; On the origin of Osiris, Apollo, and the Twelve Superior Deities; Primary Origin of Religion and Elementary Knowledge; Star of Minerva, Isis, and Venus of Cyprus; Worship of Minerva and Mercury; History of Orion, Centaurs, Giants, War of Troy, and Geomantic figures.

Varley devoted much time to the study of judicial astrology, which he may almost be said to have made a second profession. . . . Of extraordinary predictions by him many strange anecdotes are told.—Engl. Encycl.

44 ASTROLOGICAL MSS. of the 16th century entitled "Ephemerides," beautifully written in black and red, with fine coloured hieroglyphical and horoscopal figures, and diagrams of eclipses in gold and colours, very thick small 4to, stamped pigskin, with clasps, £6, 6s

This book (consisting of about 450 leaves, of which over 300 are written upon), seems to have been designed for the purpose of containing a complete system of Astrology and Astronomy. The writing and figures are beautifully executed in many places. It is altogether a great curiosity, and is in excellent preservation. The following is a selection from the principal contents:—

Astronomical Rules for Tables; Tables of the Planets in every degree; 25 diagrams of eclipses with hieroglyphical figures underneath; Astrol. diagrams, with 56 horoscopal figures, probably to represent every 5° of the sign; Astrol. observations; various Tables of Equations, Occultations, Conjunctions, Planetary houses, Motions, &c.; horoscopes; longitudes of the planets, 1441-1531, &c., &c.

A book label inside cover reads as follows: "Rev. et nob. Dom. Wolfgangus Andreas Rem à Ketz, Cath. Eccles. August: Sum: præpositus, librum hunc unà cum mille et tribus aliis, variisq; instrumentis Mathematicis, Bibl. Monas. S. Crucis Augustæ, ad perpetuam cōventualium usum Anno Christi MDLXXXVIII. Testamento legavit."

Printed at Altona and sold by I. D. A. Eckhaet, and at the Herald's Book Warehouse, Hamburgh, 1785 (22 leaves). In one vol. large folio, hf.-calf, gt., £3, 10s

These two MSS. contain numerous EXTRAORDINARY DRAWINGS of hieroglyphical and symbolical figures finely executed and COLOURED. Several of the descriptions are in German, but of these translations are given. They seem to have been written early in the present century.

An unusually fine copy of the best edition of this rare and most extraordinary work, Stanley's copy of which sold for £13.

"From Bulwer's extravagance some illustration is thrown upon one portion of the history of human knowledge. He lived at a time when fact and fiction were indiscriminately gorged and devoured by all who sought for the reputation of learning."—Retros. Review.

The work is nevertheless as learned as entertaining, and is surely one of the most curious and interesting in the English language. The "Pedigree," which shows the fopperies of the "Gallants" of the period to be derived from the fashions of rude and barbarous peoples, is very amusing, the cuts bringing out by comparison the points of resemblance in a comical and almost startling manner.

MANUSCRIPT OF 174 PAGES. "From D. of Marlborough's Library, Oct. 20, 1819." The following account of it is added in MS. "The MS. in this book at p. 81 dated 1669 (2) is printed in 'Ripley Revived,' London, 12mo, 1677-8. It is printed nearly word for word with the exception that Sir G. Ripley's poetry is not quoted in this MS. The MS. at p. 141 (4) is printed in the same work. The MS. at p. 129 (3) is translated into English in the same work. From this last MS. we may prove even more strongly than the date of the 2nd MS. [does] that this book was written before the 'Ripley Revived' was printed; as examining it I found there was one of [the] experiments given in the printed translation, which has been here inserted in the margin of this MS., in a much later hand at p. 131, and said to be copied from Mr Cooper's copy 1677, who is the printer of the work in all probability, as it is unlikely that since a William Cooper printed 'Ripley Revived' in 1677 any other person should be alluded to. This experiment may either have been copied from his MS. copy or translated from the English one. T. Stewart, 1821—The value of this is undoubtedly very great.—T. S."

306 URQUHART, Sir Thomas. TEN BOOKS of EPIGRAMS ; the curiositie whereof, for conception, stile, instruction, and other mixtures of show, and substance, being no lesse fruitfull then pleasing to the diligent peruser, are intituled Apollo, and the Muses : written by the right Worshipfull Sir Thomas Urchard, Knight. In Manuscript, 270 leaves, folio, vellum, £10, 10s [1640]

AN ORIGINAL UNPUBLISHED HOLOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of the translator of Rabelais. The first portion consists of 364 numbered pages, containing the Epigrams as entitled above, which are of quite a different character from those printed in the Maitland Club volume, being as a rule exceedingly coarse. The MS. vol. begins with the Dedication to the Duke of Hamilton, and contains the lines, "To the King," which are both in the printed work. The second portion consists of about 180 pages not numbered, which comprise a curious piece in verse entitled "A Dialogue;" "the Animadversion," in which he characteristically states "that for having contryved, clerked, and digested those eleven hundred epigrams in a thirteen weeks' tyme, it argues in the author a great maturity and promptnesse of wit," and several pieces in verse. Then follow a series of most elaborate indexes: one being of subjects, another of the "harshest and most difficult words," another of first lines, &c. The last 48 pages consists of other Epigrams, which include some, if not all, of those in the printed volume.

The MS. is in a large, bold, and legible hand, in some places, however, rather crowded by annotations and revisions. Its date is fixed by the following "Chronogram of this present year 1640;" the LORD IS WITH YE WHILS YOU BE WITH HIM. On the last page is written, "Pat. Gordone, witnes," and "Liber Georgi Ogillve, Master of Banff, 1683."

This MS. is more interesting from the fact, that, as stated in the Introduction to the Maitland Club edition of his works, the Charter-Chests in the possession of Urquhart of Craigston, had been examined with a view to discover any relic of the author, but that none had been found, except two unimportant private deeds.

Maillé, Jean Moussat, 1616-20

Dediée à la posterité.—"Cet ouvrage est écrit avec beaucoup de liberté, et il contient bien des faits curieux dont l'auteur a été témoin. Cependant les préventions de d'Aubigné contre les catholiques, et son penchant bien connu à la satire, ne permettent point d'accorder une grande confiance à ses récits. L'édition que nous citons a été imprimée aux frais de l'auteur: mais à peine était-elle publiée qu'une sentence du lieutenant civil, en date 2 Janvier 1620, condamna l'ouvrage à être brûlé par la main du bourreau, en sorte que les exemplaires en sont devenus rares."—Brunet.

"Continues to be good reading, in virtue of the antique aroma (for wine only acquires its bouquet by age) which pervades its pages. Its volumes are so many tickets of admission to the vast and devious vaults of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, through which we wander, tasting a thimbleful of rich Canary, honeyed Cyprus, or subacidulous Hock, from what dusty butt or keg our fancy chooses."—J. Russell Lowell.

80 [BULWER, John.] Anthropometamorphosis: A View of the People of the Whole World: or a short Survey of their Policies, Dispositions, Naturall Deportments, Complexions, Ancient and Moderne Customes, Manners, Habits, and Fashions. [With an appendix of the Pedigree of the English Gallant], frontis. (with the leaf of descriptive text), and numerous very curious woodcuts (no portrait), small 4to, calf (rebacked), 70s 1654

"From Bulwer's extravagance some illustration is thrown upon one portion of the history of human knowledge. He lived at a time when fact and fiction were indiscriminately gorged and devoured by all who sought for the reputation of learning."—Retros. Review.

This rare and most extraordinary work is nevertheless as learned as entertaining, and is surely one of the most curious and interesting in the English language. The "Pedigree," which shows the fopperies of the "Gallants" of the period to be derived from the fashions of rude and barbarous peoples, is very amusing, the cuts bringing out by comparison the points of resemblance in a comical and almost startling manner.

This very rare work has been attributed to Frederick, Prince of Wales (father of George III.), and its authorship formed the subject of a controversy between Lord Macaulay and J. Wilson Croker, carried on in the Edinburgh and Quarterly Reviews, and Blackwood's Magazine. The two sequels are very rare, and seldom found with the "History." "Pausanias, &c.," wants half of three leaves. For notices, see Notes and Queries, vi. 220, and Lowndes' Bibl. Man., p. 2688.

For a highly eulogistic notice of the "Emblemata Horatiana," see Notes and Queries, vol. vii. p. 614. Otho Venius was the master of Rubens, who "falls far short in originality compared with his master; and, I may add, in richness of material," says the writer of the notice.

Fine clean copy of this scarce edition. It "came into competition with that issued by Browne (see above), and gave rise to 'sundry skirmishes and passages of arms between the rival editors.'
